FINNS PUT OUT PEACE FEELERS

Helsinki Reported Attempting To Make Contact with Russians.

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 14—Unconfirmed reports that preliminary contact already has been established between Helsinki and Moscow added significance today to the presence of three Finnish leaders in this neutral capital, logical site for possible peace negotiations.

Speculation that something may be afoot was given a fresh filip yesterday by the arrival here of Leo Ehrenrooth, Finnish minister of the interior. He had been preceded to Stockholm by Juhu Paasikivi, who helped negotiate the Finnish-Russian peace treaty of 1940, and Eljas Erkko, former Finnish foreign minister.

Ehrenrooth ostensibly came here on a mission in connection with the evacuation to Sweden of Finnish children living in areas which might be subject to Russian bombing. As a cabinet member, he conceivably could play an important part in peace talks.

Fear Nazi Reprisals

There were indications Finland probably was feeling her way cautiously for fear of German reprisals. This was reflected in a dispatch from Helsinki quoting a conservative member of the Finnish parliament as saying:

"We must see the situation only from the point of view of what is best for our own country. No one here wants to share Italy's fate."

It is known that there is considerable anxiety in Helsinki that Finland might become "another Italy," particularly in view of the feeling the Germans might try to hang on to the nickel and copper mines in northern Finland regardless of developments.

Helsinki advices reported a continuous round of government conferences was being held in the Finnish capital, but these activities were surrounded with great secrecy.

Might Leave Cabinet

There was some speculation here that Vaino Tanner, the anti-Russian Finnish finance minister, might leave the cabinet along with several other members in order to give the government a complexion more favorable in Russian eyes.

It was suggested Paasikivi himself might be a likely prospect for premier in event of a shakeup.

It was learned here Tanner absented himself from a meeting of the Social Democratic party's executive committee in Helsinki Friday, at which party members in the government were directed to do everything possible to ask Russia for peace terms.

Also absent from the meeting were Minister of Communications Vaino Salovaara and Minister of Social Affairs Aleksi Aaltonen.

MANSFIELD BUSINESS AREA HIT BY FIRE

$500,000 Blaze Sweeps Three Buildings.

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., Feb. 14 — Three brick buildings comprising half a downtown business block were in ruins today despite a 10-hour fight against flames by firemen of three cities.

Damage was estimated unofficially at $500,000.

Firemen were still pouring water into the smouldering ruins early today although there were no signs of fire. The blaze started in a night club and spread to the buildings occupying the east half of the north side of the public square between North Park street and East Third street. The fire was discovered by two boys walking along the street who notified patrolmen in a passing cruiser car.

The fire broke out at 6:30 a. m. in the Ringside cafe. All Mansfield fire fighting equipment was called to the scene, but the cold impaired its efficiency and turned water into sheets of ice. Flames

CHINA-BASED OFFENSIVE TO STRIKE JAPAN

Gen. Stilwell Pledges Aggressive Land and Air Campaign from Interior.

By The Associated Press

The Japanese soon will have to deal with a promised new offensive springing from the landlocked mainland of free China while fighting to retain bomb-shattered bases along their southern defense line in the Pacific.

That was made forcefully plain today by the words of Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander-in-chief of U. S. forces in China, Burma and India, and by the bombs of allied planes hurtling down on key Japanese positions in the southwest Pacific.

Stilwell, in a statement at Chungking yesterday, pledged an aggressive land and air campaign from the interior of China in anticipation of the sweeping drive across the Pacific projected by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific fleet.

No Time To Wait

Declaring vital China-based air operations "cannot wait for penetration of the (Japanese) blockade by land or sea," the veteran general officer told of building up "every facility and accommodation" for giant cargo carriers to bridge the gap between the production and fighting fronts.

American fliers, meanwhile, smashed at Japanese positions near Hong Kong and probably sank three enemy vessels, including a 5,800-ton merchant ship, off the China coast. U. S. bomber attacks in Burma also reflected the step-up in the southeast Asia air war preliminary to the big push.

Two more heavy raids rocked Rabaul, New Britain, deteriorating Japanese base which once was the pivot of the enemy's encroachment in the southwest Pacific. The Nipponese lost a total of probably 51 planes.

More than 250 fighters and bombers, at a cost of four planes, shot down 32 out of 60 enemy interceptors at Rabaul Thursday, probably knocked off 15 additional planes and destroyed one on the ground, and managed to drop 174 tons of bombs on two airdromes besides.

The Solomons-based planes of Admiral William F. Halsey's forces unloaded another 134 tons of explosives the following day in the 12th raid in 14 days on the vulnerable base at the northeast tip of New Britain. Three enemy planes were bagged in this attack.

10 Planes Destroyed

AARON A. GOERLICH STRICKEN SUDDENLY

Marion Florist Dies; Rites To Be Held Wednesday.

Aaron A. Goerlich, 62, lifelong resident of Marion county and a florist here for 20 years, died of a heart attack at 9:50 o'clock Saturday night at his home at 208 Kenmore avenue. He had been in his usual health Saturday and spent the day at work in his shop. Stricken while sitting in a chair reading, shortly after eating his supper he was ill only about two hours.

Prior to establishing his business as a florist and gardener, Mr. Goerlich was a rural mail carrier out of the Marion postoffice, serving the patrons of Route No. 7 for more than 15 years. He established his florist business in 1923.

Born Sept. 19, 1881 in Richland township to August F. Goerlich, a native of Pennsylvania and Catherine Seiter Goerlich, whose birthplace was Marion county, he was graduated from Ohio Northern university in 1907. His

Week-End Cold Wave Reaches 8 Below Here

Marion's winter weather leveled off on a more moderate plane today after the mercury tumbled to 8 below zero Saturday night.

Sunday's warm sun lifted the temperature to 23 yesterday, and last night the low mark was 12. Light snow and warmer are forecast for tonight with snow and colder weather tomorrow.

A year ago, the mercury was going through antics similar to those of last week-end, ranging from a high of 17 to a low of one below zero.

250 at Marion Co. Republican Dinner Marking Lincoln Day

Judge Walter Jackson of Lima Speaks at Annual Banquet; Party Leaders from District Among Guests.

By EDNA S. DUTTON

Tribute was paid to Abraham Lincoln as a man and leader of the Republican party by Walter Jackson of Lima, judge of the court of appeals at the sixth annual Lincoln day banquet sponsored by the Marion County Young Republican club Saturday night at the Masonic temple. More than 250 persons attended the banquet for which 300 tickets were sold. The near zero weather and hazardous traffic conditions prevented a number of persons from a distance who purchased tickets, from attending. The Lincoln day banquet is one of two outstanding gatherings sponsored by the Young Republican club, the other being an outing in the summer, usually in the form of a steak fry.

Marion Hinklin, Marion county treasurer, who served as general chairman for the banquet, presided. French Crow, chairman of the county executive committee, presented local and district party leaders and guests seated at the speaker's table. These included Judge Charles A. Guernsey of Fostoria, and Judge George S. Middleton of Bellefontaine, members of the court of appeals, David Sears of Harpster, Eighth district committeeman, Carl Lenner, president of the Young Republican club, Mrs. Don Biggert, president of the Women's Republican club, and Mr. Crow's daughter, Mrs. Martin J. Gruber of Oakland, Calif., who is here with her parents while her husband is with the armed forces in England. In presenting Judge Guernsey and Judge Middleton, Mr. Crow called attention to the fact that the court of appeals at this time is composed of three Republican judges.

Introduced by Mayor

Mayor Harry L. Dowler presented Judge Jackson, calling attention to his long term of practice as an attorney at Lima, and stated that he was serving his first term on the court of appeals. Judge Jackson spoke under difficulty as he was convalescing from the grippe and a severe cold.

Taking up the life of Abraham Lincoln as he was enroute to Washington to be inaugurated as President of the United States, Judge Jackson told of the problems which confronted him then and in the years that followed. "We as Republicans revere and honor Lincoln because he was the first great leader of the Republican party," Judge Jackson said. "We love him as a Republican and as an American." Lincoln's

German Plane Production Cut

Accurate U. S. Bombing Reduces Nazis' Output by 40 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—American heavy bombers pounding German aircraft factories have cut the heart out of fighter plane production in the reich, it was reported officially today.

Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the war production board announced that the war department had informed him United States Army air forces raids had reduced Germany's capacity to produce fighter planes by 40 per cent.

Previous official announcements had suggested German aircraft plants had suffered heavily under combined allied bombings, but today's announcement was the first that fixed the extent the damage done exclusively by USAAF raids.

Wilson's announcement indicated the USAAF in the European theater has grown tremendously in recent weeks and no longer has "little brother" status in relation to the royal air force, judged by the damage inflicted on the enemy.

Wilson said the most recent raids, not included in the Army report, had cut down Nazi fighter plane output even further than the 40 per cent reduction officially disclosed.

"The recent aerial operations against Dessau, Braunschweig, Halberstadt, Greater Frankfort, Fechenheim, Hochst, Leipsig, Offenbach and Luwigshaven aircraft manufacturing facilities have been instrumental in reducing further

Marion Industrial Gas Supply Cut To Meet Cold Emergency

Factory Curtailment Made in Accordance with Government Program; Appeal Made for Public Cooperation.

Marion industrial [illegible] gas yesterday and [illegible] commercial users [illegible] to meet a "critical" shortage.

Ohio Fuel Gas [illegible] government program to [illegible] shortage. The Associated Press reported the gas supply of 150 [illegible] that residents of 35 [illegible] wherever possible [illegible] wash day and giving up [illegible] temporarily.

Rising temperatures [illegible] effects of the conservation program may make it possible to put the industries back in service by Wednesday, officials said.

The industrial order, [illegible] for the first time in connection with a fuel shortage, had far-reaching effects in Marion, affecting hundreds of workers who were employed in the operation of furnaces, annealing ovens, foundry work and other industrial operations in which gas is used.

It was explained that gas was shut off from the plants rather than residences because of customers' health.

Public Cooperation Urged

Urging "utmost cooperation," E. M. Tharp, company vice president, said at Columbus:

"Many war plants connected to our lines either are curtailed in their production or shut down entirely. This represents a direct threat to the war program. Also many thousands of war workers are thrown temporarily out of work. We know of several instances where important war projects will be held up for want of material that these people and plants are making.

"Every customer should be willing to sacrifice in his use of gas so that service can be resumed to the war plants * * * at the earliest possible hour."

Towns affected by the shortage include: Toledo, Columbus, Parma, Dayton, Shelby, Springfield, Coshocton, Sidney, Bowling Green, Wilmington, Zanesville, Newark, Cambridge, Lancaster, Delaware, Mt. Vernon, Mansfield, Upper Sandusky, Washington C. H. and part of Cincinnati.

The Dayton area was one of the hardest hit with five plants closed and 7,000 to 10,000 workers idle.

The only major cities not affected by the gas shutoff were in industrial northeastern Ohio, including Cleveland, Akron, Canton, Youngstown, Warren and Massillon.

Ways To Help

Detailed suggestions as to possible means of cooperating in the gas crisis were outlined today by gas company officials. They included a plea that (1) no gas be used to supplement the heat of coal or oil furnaces, (2) that living quarters in gas-heated homes be confined to the fewest possible number of rooms and the temperature of 60 in the daytime and 50 at night be maintained during the crisis, (3) that all water heaters be turned off and water heated on the range only for bare necessities, (4) that baths and laundry work be postponed until the emergency ends and that (5) cooking be confined to one dish per meal along with a postponement of home baking.

REDS ROLLING TOWARD PSKOV

Five-Day Drive Clears All Germans from East Shore of Lake Peipus.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 14—The Red Army rolled on today toward the big base of Pskov, severing remaining Nazi troops in northwestern Russia, after clearing the Germans from all the east shore of Lake Peipus in a five-day drive which swept up 800 localities, including the rail hub of Luga.

The latest victories brought to 12,000 square miles the territory the Russians have reconquered since they launched their Leningrad offensive a month ago today. They are now 150 miles southwest of Leningrad.

Lunging down from captured Ostrovtsky, southernmost point on Lake Peipus, advance Russian units were less than 17 miles from Pskov, gateway to southern Estonia and Latvia.

Far to the south, the Russians continued to wipe out remnants of the 10 Nazi divisions trapped in the Ukraine, driving to within four miles of Korsun.

Hurling infantry and tanks against the outer rim of the death ring at a point west of Korsun, the Germans repeatedly were thrown back as they attempted to carve out a corridor through which some might escape, a Soviet communique said last night.

"All night and day fierce battles progressed," said the bulletin. "One of our units repulsed seven enemy attacks."

Luga, 80 miles south of Leningrad and the same distance northeast of Pskov, was taken by storm after two Soviet forces outflanked the town from east and west, the Soviet communique said. Another [illegible] force fighting within the town drove the Germans out of fortified stone houses and newly-built block houses.

The drive toward Pskov is not netting any large number of German, Maj. Gen. Alexander Gorlkin [illegible] of the Leningrad front staff told American correspondents.

Infantile Paralysis Benefit Dance To Be Held Tonight

Marion county's part in the annual benefit events held throughout the nation to raise funds for the war on infantile paralysis will be staged tonight.

The Marion activities will consist of a dance at 10 o'clock tonight at Schwinger's hall, with the proceeds going to the paralysis fund, and a box at the Ohio theater where the 51 tickets sold by the paralysis committee will be honored tonight. Persons supporting the drive through purchase of a ticket may use it either at the theater or the dance.

Dick Zahn's orchestra will provide music for tonight's dance, scheduled as a three-hour event from 10 to 1.

Carl Lemnitzer and Bernard C. Moloney are co-chairmen of the benefit.

Half of the proceeds will be sent to the National Foundation for the prevention and cure of infantile paralysis, and the other half will be used locally by a Marion county committee for the same purposes.

Many communities held their paralysis benefits in connection with parties to celebrate President Roosevelt's birthday Jan. 30, but locally the event was delayed.

Earlier, the theaters in Marion participated in the nationwide "March of Dimes" phase of the campaign, dividing this money also on a 50-50 basis between the national foundation and Marion county committee.

VOLCANO ERUPTS

Gotopu is the only active volcano in Papuan territory and one of the very few on the entire island of New Guinea. It last erupted Dec. 27, 1942.

ALLIES REGAIN INITIATIVE IN SOME SECTORS

Americans Still Engaged in House to House Struggle in Cassino.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Feb. 14—Fighting of a [illegible] character but on lessened intensity has marked the allied perimeter at Anzio in the past 24 hours, allied headquarters announced today after weathering a week-end crisis.

Resuming the initiative in part after the blanketing of allied air support by bad weather had given German armored units an edge, British troops drove forward and recaptured a bottleneck bridge over the railway west of Carroceto (Aprilia), 10 miles north of Anzio, with the support of tanks.

Emphasizing the indeterminate nature of the battle, however, the Germans again occupied a factory a half mile east of Carroceto after days of fierce fighting in which the battered packing houses and silo-like structures of Benito Mussolini's agricultural enterprise changed hands four times.

While allied air forces again struck the German ring about the bridgehead and other objectives with the fury of 800 sorties, American troops paid with blood and sweat for a 200-yard advance in Cassino 80 miles to the east, battering down each German stronghold in a house-to-house struggle.

The Germans, too, still held the ancient towers and buildings of the Benedictine monastery atop the hill west of Cassino.

Nazis Using Monastery

Following Saturday's allied announcement that the Pope's summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, just north of the Anzio bridgehead, was saturated with Germans and therefore subject to bombing, the allies stated the Mt. Cassino monastery was being used by the Germans as a part of their fortifications as well as an observation post and that it might have to be taken by direct assault.

But there was no report here, contrary to Rome radio declarations, that the abbey had yet been bombarded.

(The German communique declared an allied penetration to the center of Cassino has been eliminated. Rome was bombed last night, it declared).

An official announcement said the Germans again had bombed an allied transit hospital near Anzio Saturday night and caused casualties. Previously the Germans had bombed one hospital and shelled another, both plainly marked with the Red Cross insignia.

Another announcement said the British and Americans had taken well over 2,000 German prisoners in the beachhead fighting since the landings Jan. 22.

Since the allies pulled in their forward units and formed their present perimeter around the beachhead on Feb. 3 the line has been firmly held and has remained substantially unchanged despite strong German counterattacks along the northern flank, a headquarters commentator stated.

Nazi Attacks Weaken

German attacks have diminished in the past 24 hours. They were particularly ominous Friday when German armor began jabbing at the allied flanks, with rain, gales and mist breaking up the air cover which previously had kept enemy tanks in check.

Yesterday the ground was soft, making movements of vehicles difficult, and the weather, while colder, became somewhat clearer allowing impatient British and American airmen to resume regular patrols, divebombing and strafing.

Patrol activity on the ground continued on all the other fronts, but many mountain passes were blocked by snow on the Eighth army front.

American Spitfire pilots reported the German air force had thrown its newest single-engined fighter, an improved Focke-Wulf 190 with an air-cooled motor, into the battle of the Anzio beachhead.

Big Planes Grounded

While the weather was sufficiently good to put the usual big air cover over the beachhead, it was not good enough to allow the heavy Flying Fortresses and Liberators to operate.

Enemy vehicles and troop concentrations both around the beachhead and in the Cassino area were attacked yesterday by bombers. Fighters maintained battle line patrols.

Bombers over northern Italy blasted the Bucine viaduct south of Florence.

Approximately 800 sorties were flown by allied planes yesterday while only about thirty enemy aircraft were active over the beachhead area, four being de-

Spring To Help Meet Galion Water Supply

Special to The Star

GALION, Feb. 15—With Galion's water shortage at the critical stage, city officials believe they have found a spring that will add to the supply. Working with state officials, local officials case up a spring that they located at the rear of the water works adjacent to Heise park.

A filter will have to be installed before the water can be added to the city supply, officials said today.

The spring was discovered when it was recalled that at the time the cement abutment for the bridge below Heise park was placed, workmen had difficulty in controlling a spring of water near the bridge.

The diamond got its name from the Greek "Adamas," meaning "the unconquerable."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

THE POWER OF VOTES

Editor of The Star—I've read comments about this and that in this paper, some local and general. I wish to say we have a great Republic; let's keep it that way, we the people are ungrateful or else we'd put real folk in office, with rules and regulations for them to live up to.

We have allowed billions of dollars to be handed to our South American friends, billions of dollars to Europe, Asia and Africa to rehabilitate alien people, and a billion dollars to our very questionable Russia friends, but we allow our government to hesitate and quibble and cut appropriations that should compensate in a fair manner our youth of our own country, who have sacrificed their ambitions, been crippled, blinded, some have lost their sanity, to give the rest of us the opportunities that have been taken from their young lives.

Our congress has cut down payment for honorably discharged soldiers, at the threat of the President's disapproval and his habitual veto of soldier relief.

Our congress seems to tremble at the crack of the Administrational whip, but does not fear the disapproval of its fellow citizens, or the loss of public support as much as presidential patronage. They think we the people will forget or not care.

We were promised that not one of our boys would leave our shores; now they have been spilling off our shores by the millions, the power of our country out, sacrificing their health and happiness for our well being. Let's be careful to elect men to office who are grateful for their sacrifices, who will hand the billions to our own boys who are giving their all for us, and keep our Republic the great Republic it has ever been.

We have our power in our votes, let's elect men who are 100 per cent for our United States and liberty and justice for all.

A SECOND GAS CRISIS NOW EXISTS
Again we've gone as far as we can in maintaining gas service without calling on you for help. Many of the war plants we serve and all "non-essential" plants are cut off or cut back in their uses of gas. True, most of the curtailed war plants are of a nature that the work can be caught up again. The remaining war industries which we serve are producing materials needed so critically that we would jeopardize the war effort if their gas supplies were curtailed or shut off.
Please cooperate again by reducing your uses of gas in accordance with the instructions in the panel below. Not only will you be helping in a war crisis but also you will help prevent gas outages to many domestic customers — perhaps to yourself.
Please Cut Your Uses of Gas to a Minimum Until Further Notice
HEATING—
UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES SHOULD GAS BE USED TO SUPPLEMENT THE HEAT FROM COAL OR OIL FURNACES. DON'T PERMIT YOURSELF TO USE THE RANGE OVEN, GAS GRATES OR HEATERS FOR SUPPLEMENTAL HEATING. EVEN SMALL AMOUNTS USED FOR THIS PURPOSE MIGHT CAUSE A COMPLETE OUTAGE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD.
Those solely dependent on gas for heating should confine their living to as few heated rooms as possible. Close off bedrooms, recreation rooms, sun porches and even dining rooms where this can be accomplished. The heated quarters should not be more than 60 degrees in daytime and 50 degrees at bedtime or after hours in a place of business.
WATER HEATING—
Shut off ALL water heaters.
Heat water on your range top only for bare necessities.
Postpone baths and laundry until emergency ends.
COOKING—
Confine your cooking to one hot dish per meal. This appeal is made to those eating in restaurants and hotels as well as homes.
Postpone home baking until the emergency is past.
During the emergency there is a constant possibility of a gas outage at your premises. Gas appliances not having automatic safety shut offs should not be left burning unless there is an adult person at hand to turn them off immediately in case the service is interrupted.
You Will Be Notified as Soon as the Crisis is Past

TIFFIN FLIER IN HOT FIGHTER TEAM

By The Associated Press

AINVILLE — (Delayed) Thomas A. Conrad, Tiffin, as one of a group of young pilots who, fresh from the States, teamed up almost to become one of the fighter squadrons to hit the since the early days of anal.

sweeps over the great base at Rabaul, New Britain Dec. 27 and 28, this squadron knocked 24 enemy fighters from the sky, and lost but two pilots from their own force.

Until Dec. 27 these boys had been used for the most part on local patrols, and in the 21 days since their arrival from the states they had not once been on a combat flight.

The squadron bagged seven Zeros on Dec. 27 but went back the next day and got 17 more.

Lieut. Conrad almost became the third casualty. A 20 mm. shell blew a gaping hole in the mid section of his left wing, set off several rounds of ammunition, but he dove down, opened up on a Zero and sent it flaming into the sea.

Marion's Army Air Forces Depot Gets "Superior" Rating

Recognition Comes from Service Command's Head Officer After Inspection of Operations on Ordnance Plant Area.

One of Marion county's military installations, plugging along quietly at a job vital to effective prosecution of the war on virtually every United Nations battlefront in the world, has rung up for itself the enviable rating of "superior" in an official inspection recently made by the office of the Inspector General.

It is the Army Air Forces 838th Specialized Storage Depot, operating since last July at a cluster of buildings on the Scioto Ordnance Plant site. This depot is part of a worldwide supply system operated by the Air Service Command to insure that never again will there be "Too Little Too Late."

The superior rating achieved in the inspection was considered more unusual because of the comparatively brief time the depot has been in operation, with most of its key civilian jobs being held by residents of Marion and nearby communities who have had less than six months' experience at their new work.

From Commanding General

Major R. G. Shank, commanding officer at the depot, has received a letter from the commanding general of the Fifth Service Command at Fort Hayes congratulating him and his assistants on the job being done. The report of the inspection indicated "no deficiency or irregularity and that your duties were found to be carried out in an outstandingly efficient manner and your general rating superior," the letter stated. The Marion depot is believed the youngest of its kind to receive a superior rating.

A trip through the depot is a revelation to visitors. Eight large warehouses built for the Scioto Ordnance Plant were taken over, along with several other auxiliary buildings, when the depot was activated last spring. Comparatively few changes had to be made because the buildings already had concrete floors and convenient rail and roadway facilities.

A Vital Service

The depot's assignment is a big one. It handles all the replacement and repair parts for an aircraft engine that is used in many of the pursuit and bomber planes that are making things hot for the enemy on fronts all over the world. While the job is not as exciting or dramatic as many others, there are few that would outrank it in importance as a link in the chain of supply necessary to "keep 'em flying."

Ironically, few of the persons on the job at the depot get to see the valuable plane parts they speed daily on their way to all corners of the world. The parts come in from the factory, all packaged and marked with a bewildering (to an outsider) list of numbers and designations. The big boxes are stacked in neat rows in warehouses so large a person could almost get lost in them, while the smaller items, also packaged, go into bins.

When an order comes in, it is carefully checked by the technical control department which must keep an immense amount of detailed information at its fingertips to make sure that the orders are correct and that the points of destination will get the items they need. Then this department sends out a page of numbers to the workers, and they start filling the order.

Guided by Numbers

The workers look like shoppers in an oversize super-market, pushing their tables-on-wheels around the warehouses to the various bins while they gather the requested items. Their work is entirely one of numbers and various size packages, and few of them have seen inside the cartons they work with daily.

When the necessary items have been gathered into one pile, they are packaged in boxes and shipped. Many go by rail, some by mail, others by truck to an airport if the order is a hurry-up job. The depot has its system down to the place now that it's only a matter of minutes to handle a rush order.

There are comparatively few rush jobs, and the reason for this reflects credit to the overall planning and efficiency that is behind the Army's depot systems. The Marion depot doesn't wait until somebody needs a part in a big hurry—nine times out of ten, or oftener, the depot and the agencies that work with it have anticipated the need and have delivered the part where it is needed several weeks in advance of the actual need.

Major Shank makes it sound like a simple matter, but actually the problems are manifold and new ones arise every day. "There's nothing mysterious about our work," he said. "We know where the planes we are to supply are located and how many there are. We know from experience how the various parts wear—how many hours the planes will normally operate before they'll need certain parts. So we ship them their anticipated needs. Besides, we keep them supplied about 30 days ahead of their actual needs. Then as their demands vary, they have plenty of time to let us know and we have plenty of time to send any extras they might need. We went through all of the 'too little, too late' days we want early in this war—those days won't come again if we can prevent them."

Wide Variety of Parts

The Marion depot handles thousands of different parts—all the various parts for the one type engine. The parts range in size from big castings to little pieces that would be hard to find if one slipped to the floor. Each part has its own number, and each number its own bin. And all are packaged to protect precious parts from corrosion or damage in handling.

A stroll through the warehouses wouldn't give anyone much of an idea what is inside the various boxes, and even when the overseas shipments are marked and ready to be on their way, you can't find out much by examining one. They are marked in code and not even the workers who put the addresses on them know where the packages are going. They simply mark the addresses according to instructions and the rest is automatic.

The depot personnel recently was increased by the transfer here of a post technical inspector, Second Lieut. William A. Hutton, formerly at Patterson Field. His home is in Springfield, O.

Ohio Draft Board Balks at Induction of Fathers

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 14—Draft Board No. 7 has notified state selective headquarters in Columbus it intends to default on induction calls and not draft fathers from nonwar industries until state headquarters releases some single and childless married men now deferred, a board member said today.

Several single and childless married men employed in local war plants have received as many as five deferments, the spokesman, who declined use of his name, reported.

"If a man cannot be replaced in a year, the company doesn't intend to replace him," the board member asserted. He added the board intends to follow its announced policy unless state headquarters "forces its hand."

Advance Arrangement Is a Real Help . . .

One of the reasons why so many now make funeral arrangements before the need arises is to relieve their families of that burden in their grief.

It is a thoughtful thing to do, and from our experience we encourage it. Another reason why this is a sound plan is that funeral arrangements made when minds are normal are far more apt to represent the true desires of a family.

We invite consultations and willingly supply any information.

SOME HOGS SELLING BELOW TOP PRICE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 — Although the government has guaranteed a floor price of $13.75, Chicago basis, to farmers for all hogs weighing more than 200 to 300 pounds of good and choice quality, not all animals of this class unloaded here are selling at that price today.

The support level applies only when hogs are purchased by packers. It is through government subsidy payments to packers that the support level is maintained. When bought by speculators, hogs weighing 200 to 330 pounds have no "floor."

Packers, unable to obtain "government weights" for less than $13.75 without forfeiting subsidy payments, have shown a preference for hogs outside the support bracket. Speculators and country buyers who do not come under the subsidy ruling are able to purchase animals at a lower price.

Rather than risk the expense and weight shrinkage of hogs carried over in the stockyards unsold, some producers are selling swine to interests not affected by the support program. Most stock sold below the "floor" price are the heavier weights.

The market trend of a few weeks ago, when packers were buying hogs heavier than the supported weights, has sunk to lighter weights. Swine weighing 170 to 190 pounds sold yesterday for as high as $13.75, equaling the government figure for 200 to 330 pound butchers.

Strictly good and choice yearlings and light steers showed advances of 25 cents this week. Steers topped at $17.000. Liberal holdovers were slightly reduced. The top was $13.75. Slaughter lambs closed steady with last week's trade, the closing top was $16.35.

National Radio Forum Quits After 14 Years

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 — After more than 14 years on a network, the National Radio Forum, one of the pioneer discussion series, has been discontinued for the time being, the Blue network reports. The program, which had its opening broadcast on Jan. 18, 1932, generally presented officials of congress and the government in talks on current affairs, nationally and otherwise. It was presented under auspices of the Washington Star.

Its most recent time was Tuesday nights at 9:30, that period to be taken over this week by a new Boris Karloff series, "Creeps by Night."

The tough going our men are meeting on every battle front makes the little inconveniences we have to meet seem trivial by comparison. When a Long Distance circuit is crowded and the operator says "Please limit your call to 5 minutes" think of the men at the fronts. You can help the war effort by observing this time limit and by avoiding all unnecessary calls.

THEY HAVEN'T QUIT YET... HAVE YOU?

Hitler and Hirohito haven't quit yet . . . not by a long shot. Why should they?

They know that a few battles lost . . . a half dozen retreats . . . don't mean defeat! They have no more conceded this war than we conceded it after Pearl Harbor or Bataan or Corregidor!

That's why this is no time for us to sit back and take it easy. Just because we seem to be winning, is no reason for you to say: "The war's nearly over—and, anyway, I can't afford to buy an extra War Bond."

This war is a long way from over.

And can you really mean you "can't afford" to buy an extra War Bond? You ate last night, didn't you? And slept in a warm dry bed? And you've got two whole legs to take you to your job . . . and two strong arms swinging at your sides!

Are you sure you're investing all you can in Bonds? Chances are you're making more money today than you ever did. What's more, goods are scarcer, harder to buy.

So, sit down now and figure it out. Check the things you and your family must have. Necessities! Subtract that sum from your earnings . . . and you'll find that you can afford an extra $100 War Bond this month. Maybe you can even boost it to an extra $200 or $300 over your regular pay-roll buying.

So get busy and buy that extra War Bond! The only thing you "can't afford" to do is to quit now!

Intangible Loss from Strikes

THE labor department's statistics on strikes in 1943 confirm the claim that they caused only negligible losses of war production. Except for work stoppages in coal mines, which ran up the average man-days lost, the net effect on production was not serious.

Unfortunately, the coal strikes cannot be excepted; they happened, and the consequences are still with us. There have been regional fuel shortages and some actual interference with war production. Nor can it be overlooked that the 3,750 strikes in 1943 resulted in a loss of 13,500,300 man-days, including the 8,500,000 lost in the coal industry. There is no way to make the picture look better than it is.

The worst aspect, moreover, is not statistical at all, but psychological. The total of man-hours lost and the effect on production are not the things that have caused resentment. Resentment grows out of the fact that during an emergency a minority of Americans did something which did not square with the standard of duty in wartime. It spreads beyond individuals to the circumstances which permitted and in some instances even encouraged work stoppages. The intangible loss from strikes—the damage to morale and unity—has been greater than the tangible loss in work not performed.

Diplomatic Initiative

SINCE the conference at Teheran early in December, after which President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin said they had reached complete agreement on prosecution of the war and desirability of lasting peace among democratic nations, Russia has held the diplomatic initiative.

Its pact with Czechoslovakia, its exploitation of a rumor about Britain conferring with Germany, its castigation of Wendell Willkie for what was intended to be friendly comment, its attitude toward Poland and the Vatican and, most recently, its surprise move giving nominal autonomy over diplomacy and defense to its constituent republics, have kept London and Washington off balance.

There is no immediate prospect that they will get back on balance, for the sound reason that Russia's diplomatic initiative stems from its possession at the moment of preponderant prestige. Every nation in Europe must be concerned at this time with the problem of orienting its position relative to Russia. The struggle in Spain, which the Allies are trying to force out of the Axis orbit, the uncertainty in Finland where Russia seems inclined to reopen hostilities, the perplexity in Sweden over that country's neutrality prospects, the search for a "better 'ole" in the Balkans, the friction over civil administration in Mediterranean areas recovered from German domination, all stem more or less directly from Russia's ascendant influence.

In this country President Roosevelt never has revealed exactly what understandings were reached at Teheran, but events suggest that whatever meeting of minds may have occurred on other matters Premier Stalin did not promise to pull his punches in the battle for influence. Events even suggest that under the circumstances the possibility wasn't even mentioned, because it was too obviously ridiculous to expect that Russia would forego a chance to exercise some of the prestige it never had under former arrangements.

The Levels of Controversy

IN A discussion of the controversies agitating Washington, Luther Huston observes in The New York Times that one of the reasons for so much rancor is the "quality of nature" of the men who have come to dominate in national affairs during the last decade. "There has been a noticeable diminution of tolerance among leaders in all branches of the national government," asserts Mr. Huston. "The levels of controversy have been lowered. More men have come to power who like to fight with brass knuckles rather than boxing gloves."

Mr. Huston might have added that this is one of the things that seem to go with the power politics Washington has been playing during the last decade. It has been an era in which no quarter was asked because it was obvious that none would be given. It was safe to assume in every case that the last drop of partisan advantage would be wrung out of every opportunity. The whole thing was summed up neatly at one time by a slogan attributed to Thomas G. Corcoran, one of the eager young men who came to power in the Roosevelt administration: "Hit 'em in the jugular." To all the evils of the national government—its bureaucratic clumsiness, its ever-present tendency toward corruption and its preoccupation with its own perpetuity—was added a new evil. Cynical exploitation of all the animosities, slumbering or awake, of the people became the first order of political strategy.

The result is not confined to Mr. Huston's lowered levels of controversy in Washington; it is merely typical of an attitude of political ruthlessness the United States will regret for many years to come.

News Behind the News

Modern Educational Theories Blamed for Part of Breakdown in Youth Discipline.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Another thing! Teachers testify in letters to me that parents are only half to blame for the current juvenile revolution.

The other half can be traced right to the door of Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, and its responsibility for undisciplined education.

There was spawned and propagated the theory that a child should be given full, uninhibited expression of his impulses, and there the whole day of education was geared to this free expression.

"Educators" who want notoriety, and desire to be classed as "progressives" and "leaders in the new educational field," took up and popularized the notion that kids should not be required to work. You have heard them:

"Children must be made to like school" . . . "They must be allowed to express themselves to find hidden talents" . . .

Tests Criticized

Tests are made out by the teachers nowadays which can hardly do otherwise than develop a nation of graduated half-wits. The questions are not questions, but statements concerning the school work, and all the pupil is required to do is to write "true" or "false."

Any child who knows only these two words of the English language, with reasonable luck, must get 50 per cent, and if he covered half the class work, a normal guessing ability would give him at least a passing mark of 75 per cent. Why study?

Another farce of progressive education:

The teachers write half a sentence and then list three or four possibilities for ending it, inviting the child to select the correct one. The teachers do all the work. The pupil merely puts in a check, so as not to strain—or use—his poor little brain, although the primary reason for education is to teach people to think.

Reading Methods

Fanciest, however, was the method of teaching reading "so the child will love to read." Never bother about spelling, pronunciation, or grammar, or anything difficult that will come. Well, it has not.

Instead, there has come a popular intelligent juvenile realization that study and work are not necessary, and teachers have no authority (most who write to me anonymously are afraid of school board and parents to the extent they dare not challenge a wayward pupil, or let their names be used by me.)

How a leading nation of the modern world could degenerate intellectually to this extent is difficult to imagine. Not even Russia—backward, Communist Russia—has clung to such educational monumities.

An educational writer currently reports Russian schools have dropped progressive education and put the kids to work with stern discipline and thorough scholarship (even eliminating co-education in order that the normal super-interest of romance and marriage be not confused with adolescent education or left for other hours.)

If Russia raises her children in that way, and we continue to raise ours in our way, which next generation will be able to stand in this world of conflict? Which nation will survive? What can this war victory bring to us?

School Discipline Urged

We had better quickly give back to the school principals and teachers a disciplinary authority which will command respect. For children raised under proper parental discipline, it is not necessary, and never was.

It is the child who does not encounter discipline at home, who must be taught it at school. But the panty-waist progressive educators say (and unthinking parents also):

"You will instill fear in the poor little dears."

Of course. How else? Is it not the fear of jail and punishment by society, including ostracism from friends and neighbors, considered necessary to require adult conformance to the laws of society?

If necessary for adults who are supposed to have fully developed minds and have learned self-restraint, how much more necessary it is to instill fear of punishment in undeveloped minds.

Backed by Psychiatrist

A Philadelphia psychiatrist who studied 19,000 juvenile court cases there, found just one general cause—"lack of sense of responsibility for behavior." He sees only one cure—discipline. He says only "dilletante psychiatrists" counsel against the instilling of fear of punishment.

I would add that the progressive educational leaders have no grounds in modern psychiatry, modern psychology, or ultra-modern common-sense to justify the stupid mistake into which they have drawn the the schools and parents of this nation, perilously.

Your Income Tax Return

Get All Your Figures First

This is the first of a series of articles prepared to assist in the preparation of income tax returns.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Making out your 1943 income tax report will be an easier job if you do three things before starting to fill in the return.

1. Write on a work sheet the figures you will need for the return.
2. Put on work sheet the various amounts of your allowable deductions.
3. Carefully read the instructions that accompany your return.

The figures you need for filling in the return are: Total income in 1943 before withholding taxes; the amount of income and Victory taxes withheld from your wages; your tax on 1942 income and the portion of it you paid last March and June; and the tax you paid, if any, with declaration of estimated tax Sept. 15 and Dec. 15.

Your employer should have given you a statement of your 1943 wages before withholding and also the amount withheld for taxes. (You will want to list on the work sheet other income such as bonuses, commissions, interest, dividends and annuities.)

Figures giving the amount of your tax on 1942 income and what you paid on the 1942 tax last year should have been received in the envelope that contained your 1943 tax blank. The slip that gives you those figures is Form No. 1125. Save the slip and send it back to the collector with your return.

Another important factor to remember is that certain kinds of income are exempt from income tax and need not be reported. Among these are:

Proceeds from life insurance paid because of the death of the insured.

Money received through accident or health insurance.

Social Security old age benefit payments.

Allowance for injuries and sickness resulting from active service in the armed forces of any country.

Gifts and inheritances.

Don't brush off the job of listing allowable deductions as just another taxpayers' headache. Taking deductions may save you a substantial sum. Among the more common deductions are necessary business or work expenses, deductions for payments of taxes, for contributions to charitable, religious and educational organizations, for losses from fire, storm, theft and bad debts.

And don't forget deductions for interest paid on debts, for alimony payments and for extraordinary medical expenses.

(Next Article—Deductible Expenses.)

WHO MUST FILE 1943 RETURN

Any single person with total income of $500 or more.

Every husband or wife with individual income of more than $624.

Every husband and wife with combined total income of $1,200 or more.

Any individual who paid or owed a tax on 1942 income.

WHEN AND WHERE TO FILE

Your return must be filed and any tax due paid on or before March 15 to the collector of internal revenue for your district.

Funeral services were held in Alvarado, Tex., for Louise Lawson, a New York night life beauty who had been the victim of a mysterious murder. Norman Lawson, Dallas Tex., attorney who was a brother of the slain girl, said on the day of the funeral, "The murderer of Louise Lawson shall pay. We shall strive unceasingly to that end." The crime, however, remained one of New York's unsolved mysteries.

Mrs. George B. Scofield was elected a delegate to the national conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution to be held in Washington in April. Her election took place at a meeting of Capt. Consider the Customers First Things Post-War Planners Must Not Overlook.

BY STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Correspondent

THE post-war problem is how to get our war industries to serve many customers, Uncle Sam. Most of the theories about solving the problem, aiming to be profound, make a detour around the realities.

After the war there will be a change from the present "cost plus" economy to a competitive situation, in which selling prices will be determined by competitive influences, not negotiation.

If, as is to be expected, the cost of government shrinks with the advent of peace and, as a result, taxes, especially excess profit taxes, are reduced, then business will be permitted to retain as net income a larger ratio of its gross receipts. How much an individual company will actually keep will depend on its efficiency and competitive position, whereas under war taxes there is in effect a virtual ceiling on net earnings after taxes.

From a constructive standpoint, the current fashion of discussing post-war conditions does indicate that the business community will not be taken by surprise by the outbreak of peace. The stressing of post-war problems reflects a widespread awareness that current conditions are abnormal and subject to change without notice. Such alertness is healthy. It means that businessmen are on guard against the normal human fallacy of regarding the present pattern, no matter how abnormal, as an indication of what is coming in the future.

IN many trade association studies, there is a tendency to overrate the authority of business executives in guiding the post-war process. There is a tendency to overlook the fact that the industrial executive is in reality a middleman who, as enterpriser or undertaker, assembles labor, raw materials and tools and brings the resultant product into association with the customer. It is the customer in the last analysis who validates or upsets the business decision which have been made. The customer in a competitive market must approve the quality, design, and price of products and services offered for sale. He votes his approval by buying, and he signifies his disapproval or apathy by not buying.

The businessman can help the process by holding down costs so that he can entice the customer by giving more or less. In the modern power age, under peacetime conditions, one man's workers are another man's customers. Specialized workers in agriculture, industry, trade, government and the various service and communications occupations employ one another through interchanging the products of their year's labor.

In the post-war market under the free enterprise system, the business executive will get his franchise to operate through the simple device of pleasing customers. In all his planning, technological and otherwise, he must not overlook the fact that a satisfied customer is the spark plug for a flourishing business.

THE customer provides the businessman with funds to pay taxes, employ labor, buy materials, provide for the wearing out of tools, and for payments to owners for the use of assets which they have provided out of their savings. The great merit of the private enterprise system inheres in the fact that it is based on the right of the individual customer to select or reject proffered goods freely in accordance with his own whims, desires and predilections.

Technology, that is, the use of improved tools and better methods, is of the utmost importance in providing the sales stimulus of giving the customer more for less. But sometimes theorists miss the point by assuming that the course of technology is automatic in accordance with the growth of scientific knowledge. This is not true.

Its course is regulated by the desires and wants of customers. Sometimes the market responds quickly to a new product; other times more slowly; and sometimes it votes "no" on new products seeking popularity. But theorists, with hindsight, ignore the competition among products, and assume that the victory of the successful happened inevitably.

Thus, they fail to recognize the economic importance of advertising and merchandising, without which the rapid conversion of customers to new products, new services, and new habits could not be accomplished.

Mr. Bell's Friends

By Truman Twill

Sometimes it's a good thing Alexande ham Bell didn't live to hear all the words about his new telephone. They ge sincere every day and already are so that some of the sincerity must be repre by asterisks and exclamation points.

The thing that would have stirred Mr. Bell most, no doubt, would be the te neurotics, almost as numerous as telep the end of this war, which on the hom is being partly fought by telephone, they importantly numerous among the war ca

There is the pitiful case of the p who can't talk any more unless they right hands up to their ears, a clear case ditioned reflex. We have seen three unmarked men deformed for life by a ing of the skin of the outer ear, known phonelasis.

We are mindful, also, of the insanity in eager beavers who jump out of bed morning, gulp their breakfasts, rush to grab their telephones and discover succession that Smith is out of to isn't in and no one knows where he is sick, Black can't be disturbed and is tied up indefinitely in conference.

And we think sadly, also, of the that comes into the eyes of frustrated uals who decide at 10:30 they will out for a trip to the drinking founta called back every time they get up for hour while they die slowly of thirst. A birds who finally get to the breaking scream at Mr. Bell's marvelous inv threaten to pull it out by its roots it out the window. No good will come condition either.

Some indirect benefit may come ever. We are thinking of the proves of improving the telephone to satisfy of its users. Two simple changes a One is a switch which would record inside the telephone and the would say, "Sorry, better luck next ti would be a great time saver.

The other is a telephone with a re wouldn't have to be held in the user would have both hands free to and draw doodles. This would concession to the science of therapy. By giving the victims of marvelous invention a chance to use it would get their minds off the These things can't be done in time the war, but if they are done imme ward they will help hold civilization the peace.

49th Combat Mission Proves Nemesis of Kenton Bombardier

W. Lingrel of Ken- ... to round out a nice ... missions. But his ... mission proved to be ... last before being ... but within an ace of ... this world, according ... release from the Mid- ... Air Field at Midland.

...rrived at Midland ... Field to take a highly ... course in advanced training techniques and teaching methods at the Army Air Forces Central Bombardier Instructors School, Lieut. Lingrel holds the Silver Star, the Purple Heart, and the Air Medal with eight Oak Leaf clusters. He served from February to November, 1943 in the North African and Mediterranean theaters, where he piled up 197 hours of combat flying.

On that forty-ninth mission, in September of 1943, he was lead bombardier in a formation of Mitchells sent to attack an important road junction and bridge at San Martino in Italy. Throughout the route and over the target, the formation was subjected to intense, heavy and accurate ack-ack fire. Fragments of one shell that exploded in "The Alley Cat" caught Lieut. Lingrel in the right thigh, completely severing many veins.

Silver Star Citation

The citation accompanying the award of the Silver Star made to Lieut. Lingrel as at result of that mission, says: "Disregarding shock, pain, and the imminence of death from rapid loss of blood, he gallantly and courageously stayed at his post, knowing well that the success of the mission was dependent upon his example in releasing his bombs at the proper time. Not satisfied with having acted above and beyond the normal course of duty thus far, he continued to disregard his own safety by further staying at his post after the bomb run and gallantly assisted the pilot in leading the element to safety by calling out anti-aircraft bursts, locating and warning other planes of hostile fighters, and generally assisted in keeping the damaged formation together. During this period he would allow no one to leave their post to attend him and not until the formation was out of danger did he allow the navigator to perform the first-aid which was almost too late to save his life."

So that is why he didn't get in that fiftieth mission he wanted. After his stay in the hospital, he was sent back to the States. He still has a few pieces of shrapnel in his leg, which he will always carry with him.

On his second raid, on March 20, 1943, Lieut. Lingrel had an earlier brush with death, much too close for comfort. On that day, a formation of six B-25's, escorted by eighteen P-38's, was sent out to make a low sea-sweep. Specifically, they were to skip-bomb two troop ships, escorted by four Italian cruisers that were being rushed to reinforce Rommel, at that time fighting the losing battle of Tunisia.

Heavy Flak

The flak that day was terrific. But before the American planes were near the target, 35 Messerschmitts swarmed on them. "The Alley Cat" had her right engine knocked out, going in for the target, and lost the formation. However, the pilot feathered the propeller of the crippled engine and the bomber went in on its run. "The Alley Cat" was officially credited with getting a hit on one of the transports.

On the way home, pegging along on their one good engine, the plane was again attacked, this time by six Messerschmitts. But "The Alley Cat" fought them off, knocking down two of them. During the day's action, the turret gunner was killed and the engineer was badly wounded. "The Alley Cat" couldn't make its home base, but had to crash-land at a British airfield.

The son of Mrs. Margaret P. Lingrel, 424 North Main, Kenton, O., Lieut. Lingrel attended Mount Union college and Ohio State, and was commissioned in September, 1942, after completing training at Albuquerque. He is married to the former Ruth Ann Leace, who is at present making her home in Kenton.

BLINDED IN BATTLE. A Tommy, blinded by an exploding mine on the Italian front, is shown being guided by a buddy down a hill to a nearby first aid station where he will be picked up by a stretcher party and taken later to base hospital far behind the battle lines.

The newspaper added that Hermann Goering still is the "crown prince" in Germany but few seriously believe he would succeed Hitler should something happen to him.

Risks Life Three Times To Rescue Comrades

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—For risking his life three times in as many days under intense enemy fire to save wounded comrades in New Georgia, Staff Sergeant Nicholas B. Dulle, infantryman, from Continental (Putnam county) O., has been awarded the distinguished service cross, the war department announced today.

The first episode was on July 29. Seeing a wounded corporal from his own company lying exposed to the enemy's spray of bullets, he ran forward and carried the injured man to cover.

On the following day an officer fell only 75 yards from the enemy while leading an attack on a strong Japanese position. Sergeant Dulle ran into the thick of the fire and carried the officer to safety.

Again on July 31, he moved forward through a torrent of Japanese 90 mm. shells and was knocked down three times by severe concussions while carrying a wounded soldier to safety.

G.O.P. Hunting Campaign Spot for MacArthur

Draft for President or Place in Cabinet Considered by Leaders.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—Gen. Douglas MacArthur may figure in this year's presidential campaign as a potential cabinet member or military advisor if his friends fail to convince the Republican convention it ought to draft him as a candidate.

There is growing disposition among party leaders to concede that MacArthur, whose name has been entered in the Illinois preferential primary, will be a factor at the convention. But few go so far as Senator Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan, in believing the southwest Pacific commander might be drafted for the nomination.

Vandenberg said he had received an "amazing" response from all sections of the country to a recent magazine article in which he explained why he was for MacArthur for president.

Finds MacArthur Sentiment

One influential Republican said a recent transcontinental trip convinced him there is a great deal of MacArthur sentiment among voters.

While doubting this would develop into a successful "draft" movement, he said it was not unlikely the party nominee, whoever he might be, might want to bring MacArthur's name into the campaign. He might propose him as secretary of war, as army chief of staff or as presidential military advisor in a capacity now filled by Admiral William D. Leahy.

While any such move would be calculated to give a civilian nominee's campaign the military flavor he might feel necessary to counteract possible Democratic slogans against changing the commander-in-chief, it also would have its drawbacks.

Bricker Expresses Stand

At least one presidential candidate, Gov. Bricker of Ohio, has said there would be no change in the military high command if the Republicans won—a pledge made originally in Chicago in January by Rep. Halleck of Indiana, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee.

The apparent public confidence in Gen. George C. Marshall would have to be considered before a presidential nominee committed himself to supercede the present army chief of staff. Secretary of War Stimson is a Republican and his repudiation by the nominee could be embarassing.

Then too, no one here professes to know how MacArthur would look upon suggestions he give up his command and come home before his troops retake the Philippines.

Most leaders think he would accept a presidential nomination but believe the odds against his accepting a vice presidential nomination are likely to be long.

In an address last night, C. W. Kitchen, deputy director of the office of distribution of the WFA, said civilians face a 43 per cent cut in canned fruits and a 19 per cent cut in canned vegetables during 1944.

He said a new order signed Friday allotted civilians 17,000,000 cases of 12 canned fruit items as against 30,000,000 last year; and 104,000,000 cases of 14 vegetable items compared with 128,000,000.

Kitchen said the order requires canners to set aside for military and lend-lease use during 1944 about 70 per cent of the 1942-43 average production of fruits and about 50 per cent of their vegetables.

hero was Henry Clay and his two great friends were William Cullen Bryant and James Russell Lowell. Describing Lincoln as a great individual who wanted to be right, he called attention to his greatness as an individual, his humility and the persecutions which he and his family were forced to undergo. Lincoln loved children, he said, because he believed they were honest with him. In presenting the political background, Judge Jackson said in six decades only two Whig presidents had been elected, Harrison and Taylor. Both were chosen because they were great warriors, Harrison a hero of the Indian war and Taylor of the Mexican war. From Jackson to Lincoln's presidency, the country had inadequate but one-term presidents, he stated.

Committeeman Speaks

A telegram was read from Congressman Frederick C. Smith congratulating the club on the occasion and expressing regret that he could not be present.

The audience sang "The Star Spangled Banner," with Mrs. Fanny Benson at the piano, and the invocation was spoken by Earl N. Hale. Following the dinner Mrs. Eugene H. Moore directed the singing of several numbers by the group.

Views of the students on matters of courtesy and social usage were sought by the committee in a subjective test presented at the same time. In scoring this test the committee decided not to take specific answers but chose the following general rules to determine the conclusions: Does the girl have an understanding of the problem and present intelligence. Also, is she consistent, is she reasonably tolerant, does she give evidence of being a high personal type.

Winners of the state contest will be presented a bond and as in former years the county winner here will be recognized by Captain William Hendricks chapter of the D. A. R.

Monastery Used by Nazis

[illegible] we haven't been [illegible] to take this heavy [illegible] we have refrained [illegible] from shelling the famous monastery which [illegible] our forces from a hilltop and is being used by the enemy as an artillery post. This [illegible] is the world's oldest [illegible] having been founded by St. Benedict in 529, and we have been protecting it from damage. However, stern necessities of our war force us to bombard it. Indeed, the Nazi controlled radio say we already have started, though there has been no confirmation.

The other tense spot in the European war is Finland. The peals of triumph in Moscow over the capture of Luga are knells of tragedy for the Finns, whose hour of reckoning with Russia is thus brought appreciably nearer by the fall of this stronghold. Hitler's strength in that part of the war zone is dwindling rapidly.

Little Finland is in the position of making peace quickly or of accepting a worse fate. The Helsinki government fully recognizes this, as is indicated by extreme activity pointing to possible negotiations between Finland and Moscow.

Negotiators on Hand

Significance would seem to attach to the fact that Dr. Juho Paasikivi, who helped negotiate peace between Finland and Russia in 1940, has arrived unexpectedly in Stockholm, as have Finnish Minister of the Interior Ehrenrooth and former Foreign Minister Rudolf Holsti. Stockholm is a logical place for a peace parley.

The capture of Luga ranks among the great victories of the Russo-German war. This is one of the keys to the turning operation that the Muscovites are now in process of carrying out against the northern wing of the Nazi front which now rests on the Baltic sea north of Narva in Estonia and you'll need your maps for this.

Luga is a strategic center, lying half way along the 150 mile stretch of railway between Leningrad on the north and the important junction of Pskov to the southwest. The Russians, having raised the siege of Leningrad after almost two and a half years, have been driving southward astride the railway on a front of more than a hundred miles, stretching between Lake Ilmen and Lake Peipus.

What the Soviet army apparently is aiming at is to turn westward around the southern tip of Lake Peipus (or Lake Pskov as that extension of the lake is called) and head into Estonia and Latvia. This would cut the German line and threaten the northern end with destruction. It also would jeopardize the Nazi front to the south.

St. Mary Defeats Richwood, 37-34

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Showing an [illegible] brand of [illegible] individual excellence [illegible], St. Mary [illegible] a 37 to 34 victory over [illegible] of Richwood High cagers at Thomas Edison Junior High [illegible] Saturday night.

Coach [illegible] McClure [illegible] take chances on any shots from inconvenient angles, instead [illegible] to teammates in more advantageous positions, and thereby captured their second win of the season over the Union county club.

Last month, St. Mary won out by a 29 to 28 margin over Richwood after Irish Forward Steve Norris sank the deciding free point in the last five seconds of play.

Johnny Gray, the senior forward whose capabilities as a first-class cager apparently get better as the season progresses, walked off with scoring honors for St. Mary with 14 points. He notched five field goals and four free throws, and always was a dangerous customer for Dick Fetter's Richwood boys to reckon with. The losers were led by Bob Milligan, a forward with plenty of "know how" on the basketball court. He also was credited with 14 points, all of which were made on action shots from the field. Milligan was especially torrid in the last quarter as he put Richwood within three points of the Irish by making six out of the Tigers' final seven points.

This was the final appearance of the Irish on a local court, being their tenth 1943-44 game in the pint-sized Edison gym. It was the tenth St. Mary victory of the year against seven losses. Richwood suffered its fifth defeat in 13 starts. The Tigers are on top of the Union county league standings with six wins and no defeats. Only Friday night, 24 hours before their appointment with St. Mary, the Tigers had trampled York, 64 to 26, in a loop contest.

McGinnis Doesn't Score

As evidence to prove the observation that the Irish functioned as a unit Saturday night is the fact that Dan McGinnis, high scoring St. Mary captain, did not make a single point against Richwood. Operating at a guard position, McGinnis "fed" the ball to his mates in the vicinity of the basket and originated most of the Irish scoring plays. Jim Lawler, the tall Irish center and a junior, along with Gray took most of the scoring burden, as he marked up 10 points on four fielders and two free tosses.

Pace-setter Gray ripped open the St. Mary-Richwood package containing four quarters of interesting, keenly-fought basketball, with a free point. Captain McAllister of the Tigers put his team ahead with a one-hand jump shot. St. Mary went into the lead as Steve Norris put in a free point and Jim Lawler made a sucker shot. Lawler followed up his basket with two gratis flips. Gray sank a one-hand push shot for the Irish and Milligan dropped in a nifty pivot bucket for the visitors. Gray sank two free throws after a personal foul was called on Welsh, husky Richwood guard. Forward Fish made a free marker for the Tigers. Lawler took an a [illegible] pass from Guard Bob Wintersteller, and looped a one-hand push shot for St. Mary. Gray put in a one-hander for the Irish. The quarter ended with Richwood getting six points on Somerlot's free throw.

Oddity of the first quarter was the extremely early banishment of Richwood's Welsh on fouls. His fourth commission was called only three minutes after the starting whistle.

Second Quarter

Gray opened the second quarter for St. Mary with a dandy long shot. Bob Irvin made a sucker shot for the Irish. Richwood got eight points on Milligan's side shot and nine on Fish's free throw. Milligan tallied another side shot and McAllister a for-nothing toss for Richwood. Irvin sank a free point for St. Mary. Center Farrington nipped in a one-hand push shot for Richwood as the half ended. Score—St. Mary 19, Richwood 11.

Third quarter: Fish made a free point for Richwood and Norris did the same for St. Mary. Wintersteller sank a one-hander for the Irish. Farrington shoved through a one-hander and McAllister dropped in a freecounter for Richwood. Gray made a one-hander for the Irish, and Norris a long shot. Richwood's total rose to 20 on Fish's sucker shot and to 22 on Milligan's underhander on the dribble-in. Norris gave St. Mary 27 on a free throw. McAllister tabulated a one-hander for Richwood and Lawler a free point and a one-handed side two-pointer for the hosts. The third quarter closed with St. Mary in front, 31 to 24.

Fourth period: Gray sank a one-hander for the Irish and McAllister a gift throw for the visitors. Wintersteller plopped in a free point, Farrington pivoted nicely and made two points for Richwood. Gray made a free flip for St. Mary and the Tigers' ace, Milligan, garnered a push shot basket. Wintersteller gave the Irish their final count of 37 on two free throws. Fish made a free point for Richwood, thanks to Wintersteller's fourth foul. Milligan sank two sucker shots with lightning-like rapidity as the game was concluded. St. Mary 37, Richwood 34.

Summary of the game Saturday night follows:

St. Mary—37	G	F	Richwood—34	G	F
Gray, f	5	4	Fish, f	1	5
Norris, f	1	2	Milligan, f	7	0

Cooler and Huber Top Triple Card in County League

Cooler and Huber, [illegible] on Marion hardwood, and [illegible] would turn the coolest evening into a tropical jungle, will meet in an important contest in the Marion county Men's basketball league at the Y.M.C.A. tonight.

The Cooler-Huber game will be played as the night-cap of a triple-header in the Y third floor gym. Starting time is 6:30. Opening tussle will find Local 1917, Alloy Cast Steel meeting the giant-killing Waldo team at 7:30. In the middle fracas, girls' teams from Fairfield and Huber will clash in another critical battle.

Cooler-Huber athletic contests always prove a dandy treat for local fans. Tonight's game probably will be no exception, instead showing promise of being one of the most sizzling of engagements between the two perennial foes. Huber has a clamp-like hold on first place in the eight-county loop with four wins and no defeat in second round play. The Cooler cagers, who won the first round championship, thus qualifying for the champion-of-champions play-off March 6, have had a tough time of it in second phase competition. Chuck Rea's Coolerites have split even in four starts.

If the Huber basketmen drop tonight's tilt to Cooler, they will go into a first-place tie with the winner of the Waldo-Local 1917 game. These last two teams are deadlocked for second spot with three victories and one loss apiece.

The last time cage squads from Cooler and Huber met, Cooler was triumphant, 33 to 32, in a hotly disputed game which decided the championship of the first round. The game was close all the way with Huber leading by a slim margin until the last quarter when an inspired Cooler team broke loose to cop the win and the title.

Fairfield's basketgirls will try to remain in top spot in the women's loop at the Y when they meet the third place Huber team tonight. Fairfield has 14 points to its credit while Caledonia has second best total of 13 and Huber has 12. Standings in the girls' league are figured on a point basis with two points being counted for a win, and one for a tie.

In games tomorrow night at the Y, Cooler and Steam Shovel women's teams will meet in the 7:30 opener, Kirkpatrick and Greenwood will clash at 8:30, and men's teams from Green Camp and Schneider Bros. Tinners will meet in the 9:30 finale.

Contingent of Camp Millard Men To Fight in "Gloves"

Men from the ranks of a pretty fair fighting organization, the United States Army, will try their hand at the good old American pastime of amateur boxing during the Marion Golden Gloves tournament at the Armory March 13, 14 and 17.

Upwards of 15 soldiers stationed at Camp Millard in Bucyrus are expected to give the tourney a much-needed stimulant by tying their entries with the Golden Gloves boxing committee of the Y's men's Service club this week.

A four-man delegation from the Y's Men's club, sponsor of the revived tournament, conferred with Camp Millard recreation officers last week about the possibility of securing entries from the soldiers at the camp. The officers whole-heartedly concurred in the plan, assuring tourney officials that a good-sized contingent of Millard men would be willing to sling leather in the event. In charge of arrangements for entering and training Camp Millard boxers is Sgt. Al Spratley, member of the camp public relations department.

In addition to the some 15 Camp Millard fighters, several civilian youths from Bucyrus have announced their intention to sign up for the Gloves, Wayne G. McCune, tournament chairman, said. Among these Bucyrus hopefuls is Harold Applegate, who played on the line for the Bucyrus High school football team last fall.

Tentative entry deadline for the tourney is Wednesday but this will be extended a few days in order to allow ample time for other prospective participants, especially from out of town, to file entries, McCune explained.

Excluding the Camp Millard and Bucyrus entries, approximately 50 youths are on the tournament entry lists at the Y.M.C.A. Latest entrants from Marion are Dorman Knapp of 380 Leader street and George "Slugger" Roest of 212 Elm street.

One of the reasons why Camp Millard officers were so enthusiastic about entering soldiers in the tourney, McCune said, was to further the camp aim of broadening the scope of its athletic program. Camp Millard men have participated in many athletic events in this section in the last two years. Boxing is only one of the many sports on the camp program but one of the most important because of its value in teaching self-defense and initiative.

Numerous intra-camp boxing events have been held at Camp Millard under the direction of competent trainers. However, it is not expected that the soldiers will hold any marked edge over Marion fighters in the amount of training. None of the Camp Millard entrants have had professional experience, all being "strictly amateur."

Golden Gloves officials report that several local tournament fighters have been training in the afternoons in the special third floor headquarters of the Y.M.C.A. as they have taken night jobs. However, most of the boxers continue to work out from 7:30 to 9:30 every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights.

Officials tournament weigh-in will be conducted at the Y.M.C.A. the night of Monday, Feb. 28, with McCune, tournament committeemen, and Dr. A. J. Wagner, tourney referee in charge.

Purdue's Boilermakers Cling To Slight Lead

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—Purdue's Boilermakers led by a nose today, with Northwestern, Ohio State, Iowa and Wisconsin still pressing hard for a share of the title as the Big 10 basketball race neared its climax.

By the week-end however, the situation might be altered drastically, for Purdue will tackle Iowa Friday and Wisconsin the following night.

These bouts feature a seven-game conference schedule which will bring Ohio State to Illinois, and Indiana to Minnesota for doubleheaders, and Michigan to Northwestern for a single engagement Saturday.

Ohio State and Canisius Outstanding Cage Teams

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 — Ohio State of Columbus, O., and Canisius of Buffalo, N. Y., win Valentines today as the outstanding college basketball teams of the past week.

The Buckeyes whipped the previously unbeaten Iowa quintet twice on successive nights to throw the Big Ten race wide open. Canisius, rebounding from a beating at the hands of Temple, knocked over Long Island university and Miami, O., university, two clubs that had been given consideration for the forthcoming post season championship tournaments.

Army, 10-0, remains the only major unbeaten five. The Greensboro (NC) BTC No. Ten outfit, boasting many former college stars, has swept all its 18 games, but against less stern competition.

Ohio Conference Basketball Race More Complicated

Miami's position at the top of the heap in the [illegible] was [illegible] Canisius of Buffalo, N. Y., handed the Indians their first defeat of the season Saturday night, 44 to 41.

The situation for Miami will become even more serious Friday night when the Redskins clash with a Bowling Green quintet that has lost only three times in 21 games and which is averaging almost 58 points a game. Miami also will play Ohio university Saturday.

Denison now has won six straight games without a defeat in the conference and has a record of 15 won and 2 lost in all games.

Denison licked Ohio university Saturday night but it was a "poor" showing—for the Big Red. The score was 48 to 40 and Denison has been averaging better than 70 points a game.

Ohio State licked Iowa twice 63 to 49 and 56 to 42. Wittenberg edged out Earlham College at Rich, Ind., 50 to 49. Miami, Akron, Cincinnati and Toledo were beaten in interstate engagements.

OHIO SWIMMERS BACK TO SET NEW RECORDS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14—Bill Smith and Jerry Kerschner came back to Columbus Saturday for a swimming meet and when they left four world's records had been shattered and their Great Lakes Naval Training station team owned a 46 to 29 triumph over Ohio State's swimmers.

Smith, a former Ohio State star, cracked the world marks in the 200-meter free style and 220-yard free style and, along with Kerchner and two others, helped break the mark in the 400-yard free style relay.

Kerschner, an 18-year-old former Columbus schoolboy, accounted for the other broken record by swimming the 150-yard free style in 1 minute 21.4 seconds. The old record was 1:22.8.

Smith reeled off the 200 meters in 2:06.2 and 220 yards in 2:07.1 to break his own world records of 2:07.7 for both events.

The Great Lakes swimmers—Kerchner, Smith, Dobson Burton of Michigan and Wally Ris of Illinois—clipped three-tenths of a second off the 400-yard relay mark as they turned in a time of 3:24.3.

Bevis Asks Deferment for Coach Paul Brown

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14—President Howard Bevis says Ohio State university is seeking a deferment for Coach Paul Brown, who recently was classified 1-A by his Massillon draft board.

"We are not asking Paul's deferment because he is a football coach," Bevis said, "but because he is a part of the physical instruction forces of the university. We have a great many Army and Navy troops stationed on the campus and their physical well-being is our responsibility."

The 36-year-old Brown, father of three children, said he was "ready and willing to do whatever the school calls for."

Ohio State Loop First Minor League To Resume Baseb

All but Two Teams, Marion and Lima, Now Have Bac Teams in Major Circuit.

By HAROLD HARRISON
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14—The Ohio State league today had become the first loop to vote to get back into organized baseball since the start of the war forced most of the small minors to suspend operations.

Six Ohio cities voted yesterday to organize the circuit as a class D league and operate in 1944 with a 130-game schedule. Members will be Lima, Marion, Zanesville, Springfield, Middletown and Newark. The season will run from either May 2 or 3 to Labor day and there will be a Shaughnessy play-off among the leaders at the end of the regular campaign.

There also will be a mid-season all-star game.

Four of the clubs came into the organization meeting with definite player tie-up with major league outfits but difficulty arose over the Newark - Cincinnati Red agreement. Bill McCrory, in charge of Red farms, asserted the Cincinnati club would not go along with any league in which the home team kept all of the gate receipts.

The new league voted, however, 4 to 2, to retain the home team-take-all provision in the constitution and the matter will be taken up again with the Reds.

Marion, Lima Unbacked

Final arrangements have not been made for any major league help for Marion and Lima but Joe Donnelly of Columbus, elected president of the league, asserted he felt sure such agreements could be reached since at least five major league teams do not have any class D affiliations.

George Trautman, president of the American association, told the meeting, "of course I can't guarantee what can be done but it seems to me it's an obligation of baseball to see that these towns get some connection."

Zanesville will operate with assistance from the Brooklyn Dodgers, Springfield with the New York Giants and Middletown with the Boston Red Sox.

The league construction, as tentatively accepted yesterday, provides for a limit of 15 players for each team, 13 of whom must be rookies. The player salary limit for each club is $1,500 a month.

Donnelly was elected president, secretary and treasurer of the league for a three-year term. Robert Ireland of Springfield was elected vice president and Frank Colley of Columbus was named publicity director.

Represent Marion

Representing the six cities in the formal organization session were Ireland for Sprinfield, George Archer for Zanesville, Max Douglas for Newark, Judge W. Dexter Hazen, B. B. Hall and F. R. Cuss for Marion, [illegible] Shepard for Lima and [illegible] Waller for Middletown.

Recruits Needed for Company H

An appeal for patriotic service on the home front came today from Carl Ebert, commanding officer of Co. H of the Ohio State guard. Replacements are needed for six vacancies open now in the company, five of them resulting from members being called into the armed forces. Men having Monday and Tuesday nights free are asked to inquire about service in the unit.

Capt. Ebert said efforts are being made to reach 100 per cent in the attendance records kept for units throughout the state. Marion was fourth in the list for January.

School sessions will be held tonight at the armory and drill will be held tomorrow night. Lt. Col. Albert Rankin of London will be in Marion to conduct inspection Wednesday night.

Men between the ages of 18 and 64 are eligible for membership. Those who have been rejected for military service are accepted by the company. Enlistment is for one year. During that time men may be called for emergency duty anywhere in the state of Ohio.

A party will be held tomorrow night after drill for the five members leaving for military service. They are James Callahan, El- Bush, John Reidel, Francis Layton and Kermit Lawrence. This is the largest number that has been called from the group so far. In order to reach 100 per cent strength the unit must be held to 50 men.

CHAPLIN SURRENDERS TO U. S. MARSHAL

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14—Charles Chaplin, movie comedian, appeared at the U. S. marshal's office today to surrender to a grand jury indictment charging him with violating the Mann act and conspiring to defraud his former protege, 23-year-old Joan Berry, of her civil rights.

Chaplin obviously was nervous and he refused to pose for photographers while he was being fingerprinted. Later, however, he consented to look into the cameras as he signed some documents.

The comedian was wearing a cream-color sports coat, tan slacks, a yellow sweater, a sport shirt buttoned at the collar, and he carried a brown topcoat. His counsel Jerry Giesler, one of southern California's outstanding criminal lawyers, accompanied him.

Capt. W. W. White of the Beverly Hills police and Robert Arden, radio announcer and friend of Chaplain, also appeared for fingerprinting at the marshal's office. They are charged only with conspiracy to defraud Miss Berry of her civil rights after her arrest on a vagrancy charge in Beverly Hills 13 months ago.

OWU DEAN TALKS ON RUSSIA'S PEACE ROLE

Tells Church Group She Has No Great Love for Allies.

The question of Russia, "one of the big powers to be reckoned with after the war," was discussed by Dean Joseph J. Somerville of Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, last night in the union service at First Presbyterian church. The lecture was fifth in a series on "Building a Christian Post-War World" sponsored by a group of Marion churches. Rev. Garrison Roebuck of First U. B. church presided for a worship period and D. T. Mills was in charge of the open forum following the address.

Speaking on "The Place of Russia in the Peace," Dean Somerville declared that whether the people of the United States like Russia and her ways or not "we will have to do business with her."

"Russia does not have too great a love for the allies," he said. "She has not forgotten that American troops were stationed in Russia Siberia in the last war. She has not forgotten that she was asked to leave the League of Nations and was snubbed by England and France at Munich."

"Much favorable publicity is given Russia in this country but we get none in Russia. She has a government controlled press," he declared.

Dr. Ben Arneson of Ohio Wesleyan university will speak at the meeting next Sunday in Central Christian church on "Various Plans for International Cooperation."

SERVICEMEN'S VOTE RIGHTS DEFENDED

Removal of Registration Cards Attacked in Court.

Marion county election officials today were watching with interest two court actions which may determine whether cards of service men and women removed from the county's files of registered voters will be put back into the ranks of qualified voters.

Ohio's law deprives a person of the voting right if he or she fails to cast ballots in any two-year period. Under this rule, the names of an estimated 2,000 Marion county men and women probably have been taken from the file of registered persons, officials estimated today. They added they had no way of knowing servicemen from other persons as they went through the files taking out names.

The Associated Press reported that the question, statewide in scope, probably will be brought to a head through suits filed in Franklin and Trumbull counties. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph J. Bartlett of Franklin county sued Thursday to compel the county board of elections there to restore the registration lists of persons in the armed forces who had failed to vote in the last two years.

A similar petition had been filed earlier in Trumbull county by Prosecutor Paul J. Reagan. Both contended removal of the names constituted a violation of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief act which provides for temporary suspension of legal proceedings which may prejudice the civil rights of service men and women.

Common Pleas Judge John R. King Friday acted on the proceedings there, enjoining the county board of elections from removing the cards of service men and women from the file of eligible voters. A hearing was set for next Thursday at which Judge King said the board must show why there should not be issued an order restraining it permanently from removing the names of persons away from the city because of military service.

The [illegible] Sgt. John F. Sens, 25 [illegible] Pvt. [illegible] Sens [illegible]. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Sens of 262 [illegible] avenue. [illegible] letter to the parents the officer [illegible] them that the two boys [illegible] other started their greeting with a handshake and ended it in each other's arms with tears coming.

The medical officer continued by saying that the boys were oblivious of the others in the ward. When they finally became aware of their surroundings they found all of the other [illegible] crying unashamedly. He said it was one of the most moving sights seen at the hospital. Later the officer was told that most of the other men [illegible] themselves and one of their own loved ones in the place of the brothers.

The older brother enlisting in January of 1941 [illegible] now chief aeronautic inspector and has been based in almost every fighting area in the European and African area. His assignments take him by plane to any section where his services are needed. The younger boy enlisted last June, trained at Camp Wheeler, Ga., and was sent overseas last December. The latter has been in the hospital recovering from a head operation made necessary by burst blood vessels. The exact cause of the illness hasn't been revealed to the family. Since his recovery he has been stationed at a replacement center awaiting assignment.

Through letters exchanged between the parents and the two boys and between the brothers themselves and with the aid of Red Cross chapter officers working from both places where the boys were based, Sgt. Sens finally located his brother and on his first leave flew to his base. He was only able to spend a couple of hours with the younger boy before he had to return to his own base in Sardinia.

STOCK DEMAND IS SELECTIVE

Rails and Specialties Able To Exhibit Some Strength Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—Selective demand continued in today's stock market with a few rails and specialties exhibiting further quiet strength while many leaders refused to stir out of the neutral zone.

Wall streeters returned from their lengthy holiday a bit more bullishly inclined as news from the critical Italian battlefront seemed to have improved.

Trends turned a shade mixed after a fairly steady opening and with dealings slowing, fractional variations either way near the fourth hour left the general direction in doubt.

Attracting support were Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio, U. S. Steel, Texas Co., Park & Tilford, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft and J. C. Penney. Backward were Bethlehem, Westinghouse, General Electric, Eastman Kodak, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear and Kennecott.

PACIFIC

Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground. Other air assaults hit the enemy from Celebes far to the northwest, to the Solomons where light naval units joined in pounding Japanese shore targets on Bougainville.

American Marines, expanding their invasion holdings at Cape Gloucester, northwestern New Britain, have taken large quantities of equipment and ammunition abandoned by the Japanese in the Borgen bay area, the communique said.

Yesterday's communique said the Leathernecks were finding many enemy dead from starvation or disease.

This was mindful of experience of Australian troops in New Guinea, who found hundreds of Japanese dead from starvation after allied air and sea patrols had smashed enemy coastal barge routes.

Continuance of the central Pacific offensive was indicated by a Tokyo broadcast which said two formations of American B-25 bombers attacked Japanese-held Wotje and Taroa islands in the Marshalls yesterday. There was no allied confirmation.

In northern Burma, Chinese troops captured Kadnjaga in an advance from Taipha in fighting which Gen. Stilwell termed "the first assault on the Japanese cordon" tieing up the movement of supplies to China. He said, too, construction of the Ledo road is "progressing satisfactorily."

Southeast Asia headquarters in New Delhi described the situation as improving steadily on the Arakan front of Burma, and said Japanese forces behind the British in one sector are being cleared out. American fliers, observing the second anniversary of 10th U. S. airforce operations in India, flew 120 sorties Saturday, strafing troops and supply points and communication lines.

MANSFIELD FIRE

continued to spread and the Ashland and Shelby fire departments were summoned.

Two of the buildings were three stories high and one was a two-story structure which housed only the Ruhl radio shop.

The Quality furniture store occupied one of the three-story buildings and the other housed four business establishments and three offices. M. Z. Scouten, manager of the furniture store, said his company's loss would reach $100,000.

In addition to the Ringside, other establishments hit by the blaze were: The McCoy and Long Bar restaurants, the Recreation and Cigar store, the Richland county Federation of Labor and the law offices of H. M. Rust and Frank B. Culp.

No one was hurt.

RAIN AND BUYING LAG SENDS WHEAT DOWN

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—Additional moisture over the winter wheat belt, a lag in government flour buying and a slackening in the demand for high protein cash wheat combined to depress bread cereal futures today. The market was steady at the start but soon declined and worked downward throughout most of the session.

Most of the trading activity was concentrated in rye, which advanced more than a cent at the start on reports of experiments to produce industrial alcohol from rye grits. Most of the advance was attributed to short covering and when other grains failed to advance rye turned weaker. Oats were off with wheat.

NAZI PLANES

Germany's aircraft production potential," Wilson said.

Wilson's unusual disclosure of the success of USAAF operations against German plane factories came in a statement declaring that as axis production was knocked out U. S. Aircraft production was just getting into full stride.

Wilson said, "mass production of military aircraft in American plants has resulted in reduction of construction time by 90 per cent. An early fighter plane type required 157,000 man hours to complete. Mass production cut that time to 7,800 man hours by the time the 1,000th plane left the assembly line. A four-motored bomber took 200,000 man hours for construction in its early production stages but this time was reduced to 13,000 man hours for the 2,000th plane.

GAS

ington, D. C., arrived in Columbus this morning to advise with the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and the Army on the handling of the gas emergency. Also he will determine the order which industries will be permitted to resume the use of gas, depending upon the critical need for the products in the Army war program.

Officials said it is likely that service can be resumed to a few of the more critical industries today. Service to other industries cannot be resumed before tomorrow even though rising temperatures are reported for today and tomorrow, they added. Forecast of a drop in temperature for Wednesday prohibited an announcement of a probable day for lifting emergency restrictions to domestic and commercial customers until later in the week.

Army's Flying Freights Deliver Goods Around the World.

U. S. 14th Air Force in China is supplied entirely by air from India. Here's the aerial Burma Road in action. Army released this picture of hitherto secret operation.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

(Former Chief Of The Associated Press Bureau at Cairo)

Flying boxcars nonchalantly now make their way daily literally to the ends of the earth on the world's longest freight line, carrying passengers and the sinews of war to the distant battlefronts of this global conflict.

The almost capable of being flown by this extraordinary service which is operated by the Air Transport Command of the United States Army might surprise you. I have seen, for example, a two-engined transport no bigger than the ordinary peacetime airliner open its barndoor-like sides and calmly swallow a whole jeep.

You can drive a jeep into the Army's flying boxcars, you can fill them with belly tanks (extra gas tanks for fighters needing more range on combat missions) or you can pack in airplane motors or maybe just a lot of cigarettes and shaving cream for the boys over there. It makes no difference what the load, the old winged freighter takes it in her stride.

Reports from Experience

I know a little about this wonderful service for I have flown it, of course, at different times from Chungking clear to New York. Just recently I came 12,000 miles from Cairo by way of Khartoum, the Gold Coast, Ascension Island (desolate place in mid-Atlantic and until recently a hush-hush spot), Brazil, Trinidad, Porto Rico, and Miami. Youngsters who had never been out of the midwest before were our pilots on this fantastic trip across desert, sea and jungle, through strange and storied lands.

It was not a comfortable trip. The only time we had what they call "plush seats"—that is, regular seats such as peacetime airliners used — was when we hopped the drink one dark December night. (You cross the equator twice, incidentally, and the sensation from that height is like the line of the equator on schoolroom globes, entirely imaginary). The rest of the time we sat on a "bucket seat"—an aluminum sort of park bench that ran down either side of the plane.

Not Entirely Pleasant

It was about as comfy as riding a mule bareback. When you leaned back you inevitably creased the back of your neck on a thin iron ledge which in peacetime would be covered with wallboard. Without the wallboard insulation, the roar of the engines and the swish of the air comes rattling in to you. It's sometimes reminiscent of the rattle and rush of a speeding freight train.

At night, when you're not flying, you're stopping in an efficiently run camp which has modern plumbing and a movie no matter how primitive the surroundings. It's usually an outdoor movie so you have to beware of malaria-bearing mosquitoes. At Accra, they take them so seriously they won't let you in to the movie unless you're wearing a tie and mosquito boots and carry a bottle of mosquito repellant. Halfway through the picture they stop it and a voice over the loudspeaker requests you to "please reapply your mosquito repellant."

Next day, at dawn, you're back on the bucket seat again, wondering why you ever started this blankety-blank trip. Certainly you don't travel for comfort these days, or for fun. You travel, like the freight you ride with, because you've got to get somewhere in a hurry. And you're darned lucky to be aboard—and know it.

Hazardous Stretch

The dangers of the ocean hop today are insignificant compared to those on another part of the line — the hazardous India to China stretch across the lofty Himalayas referred to in pilot's language as "The Hump."

I went across The Hump one day at 16,000 feet—without oxygen. I wondered if the pilot felt as woozy as I. How could he fly us if he did? We were over uncharted, jungle-clad mountain peaks then. Suddenly we found we were not alone. A Jap Zero stole up on us and cut loose with his machineguns. We got a couple of slugs in the tail—but ducked into a convenient cloud and got away. No, the pilot was not as woozy as I. He was one of the tough young breed who are setting a new record for cold, sustained courage on this Burma road of the air, this aerial lifeline to Chiang Kai-shek's long suffering land. We got there safely; we, and the freight I was sitting on.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

MARY'S voice was so low as she turned her alarming call to a tone that I am sure nobody but those at our own table heard her. I saw Carolyn open her mouth to scream, even as Mary stood up, and I spoke in a fierce undertone.

"Carolyn! Don't you dare scream! Ronald, stay here with her, but keep a sharp lookout. Yes, Noel, come with me."

Speaks Aloud

He was already on his feet as I was myself, and as we followed Mary's rapid footsteps over to the booth she had indicated, I [illegible] almost [illegible] arm a [illegible] pinch.

"Isn't it queer we didn't see them before? We must ask them over to our table for coffee."

But beneath the idle chatter which I hoped would explain our movement to Minor and Steve Redfield as well as to the other diners in the restaurant, I was as mystified as I knew Noel was at Mary's sudden declaration that she had seen a man with a knife behind the old men in a booth, but that no one else had seen him.

Even through the urgency which had permeated our dinner at the East Side restaurant where we hoped to effect Marion's rescue from the international gangster holding her, I had been aware of the quaint picture presented by two old men in a booth across from us. It was a picture which could be seen only in the type of restaurant in which we were seated, one with a decidedly foreign atmosphere.

Appearance

The two men were positively patriarchal in appearance, with long, wavy snow-white hair, white mustaches and long white beards reaching almost to their waists. They were attired in fine broadcloth suits, and presented an appearance of material prosperity, while their mental status was indicated by the intricate game of chess in which they were apparently absorbed. Every so often a waiter would come up to them, hover near them for a few seconds, then upon receiving no notice from either, would go away again.

The booth in which they sat was one of a row down the side of the room. But unlike the row of similar booths built into the wall on the other side, these were but comfortable benches with stout frames reaching to the ceiling and the floor. Heavy curtains in the middle opened on an aisle behind them from which the waiters sometimes served the booth customers when the space in the middle of the restaurant was congested.

I could see no sign of any man with a knife such as had caused Mary's alarm, as we came up to the old men, and I wondered if she might not have mistaken a waiter, parting the curtains by mistake, for the terrorizing figure which had sent her racing over to the booth.

Movement

Then I saw a stealthy movement of the curtains screening the booth from the aisle, and knew with a certainty born of intuition rather than actual knowledge, that something sinister, deadly, was threatening one or both of the old chess players.

Mary was speaking rapidly in low, tense tones as we reached her side, and the old men were looking up at her with eyes about which there was something queer, something I could not quite understand, but which expressed courteous astonishment.

"Please stand up immediately and come out here," she was saying imperatively. "Pretend you are greeting me. I can't explain now, but you are in grave danger."

He [illegible] were [illegible] from behind the curtain, in terrifying fashion.

"[illegible] dear!" Death [illegible] came a voice, low, but so [illegible] with venom that I experienced the old familiar sensation of ice slithering down my spine. And then the curtains parted, and a distorted face with [illegible] above a crouching figure glared at the [illegible] of the two old men, while a murderous-looking knife was [illegible] and directly at [illegible] I was sure it would bury itself in his heart.

Transformation

But with a miraculous transformation, the apparent "ancient of days" seemed to throw off a score or more of years as he seized the hand holding the knife, thrust it upward, pushing his assailant through the curtains the while, and muttering to his companion in a voice which my reeling senses recognized:

The next instant the curtains had closed behind the struggling figures, that, I realized, had indeed been screened from the rest of the diners by our standing group, and the other patriarch was saying in clear courteous tones:

"But this is marvelous to see you here! We have been so absorbed in our game that we have noticed nothing. Won't you sit down? My friend will be back in a moment."

For the space of almost a second, I could only gasp and goggle. Unless sudden insanity had paralyzed my brain, giving me hallucinations, the voice to whom I was listening was certainly that of my husband, Dicky, and the one of the man who had disappeared behind the curtain was that of Harry Underwood.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Diet for 2-Year-Old

The modern tendency, as I said last week, is to allow children extra food in addition to milk much earlier in life than formerly. It used to be feared that the infant's digestion was not anything like an adult's and that it could not handle solid food.

There has been much recent work on the digestive secretion at different ages and this indicates that the child at seven months begins to elaborate secretions which rapidly approach the amount and concentration of adults. For instance, taking as a standard of stomach secretion the amount of hydrochloric acid secreted (and this is the best standard we have because stomach digestion depends upon hydrochloric acid almost entirely) the new born infant has a figure of 20. At six months this has risen to 25; at 12 months to 40. And during the first year it jumps almost double to 70. At 15 years it is about 250, which is the adult figure.

So we see that a one to two year infant has the capacity to digest about a third as well as the adult. Even this figure however is somewhat rigid and in practice it is found that from the end of the first year on the infant can digest nearly anything, provided some allowance is made for the state of the teeth and other common-sense considerations. In short, [illegible] that the infant of that age can [illegible] but the preparation [illegible], [illegible] of [illegible], are the prime considerations.

Furthermore, a newly discovered digestive ferment, similar to the familiar pepsin, cathepepsin, has been found to be present in infants' and young children's stomachs in amounts greater than pepsin, and it increases early in life at a greater rate than pepsin. Since it acts as a digestant on about the same foods as pepsin, we have a situation that gives us even more confidence in the infant's digestive powers.

Here, then, is a sample day's diet for the second year, as approved by the very latest and most scientific authority I can find on infant feeding:

Breakfast

2 to 3 ounces of fruit, 2 to 3 ounces of cooked cereal with cream and a small amount of sugar, 1 glass of milk, ½ slice of toast.

Noon

1 egg, or 1 to 2 tablespoonfuls of ground meat, 1 tablespoon of mashed or baked potato, 2 to 3 ounces of vegetable, ½ slice toast, or 1 graham cracker, with butter, 1 glass of milk, a simple dessert, such as custard.

Evening

Milk soup (vegetable puree with milk and butter), custard, or cottage cheese, or ground liver, or egg, 2 ounces of vegetables, ½ slice toast, or 1 graham cracker, with butter, 2 ounces of fruit, 1 glass of milk (or less if milk soup has been given).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. J. R.: If a person has diabetes, are they eligible to be blood donors at a blood bank?

Answer: No. That is one of the absolute prohibitions.

R. S.: A friend of mine was rejected from the army for chronic valvular heart disease, mitral insufficiency. Just what is that and is it dangerous and also is there any treatment?

Answer: Rheumatism in early life lights on the valves of the heart, especially the mitral valve, creating a deformity which causes the blood to flow the wrong way occasionally. It may not give any trouble for many years. Often patients live to advanced age. They do not need treatment until the heart begins to fail late in the disease.

C. D.: In a tuberculosis sanitarium I noticed visitors kissing the patients. Is this a dangerous practice?

Answer: Decidedly.

K. C. W.: What is meant by enlarged spleen? What is the cause and remedy if curable?

Answer: The spleen enlarges with many infections and blood diseases. It usually does no harm, but can be reduced by X-ray.

Explorers called New Guinea "Island of Gold" in the 14th century, but the name was not justified until 20 years ago when British explorers hit "pay dirt."
